NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN FLOOD CASE INDICATE FRITZ LETTERS TAKEN

Mrs. Gavin Claims Letters from Grand Parents Have Disappeared Since Opening Of Will Contest Proceedings

A new angle in the protracted hearing of the contest by Mrs. Constance May Gavin of the will of the late James Flood, was brought out this week when Mrs. Gavin claimed that letters assertedly substantiating her claims that she is a daughter of James L. Flood and his first wife, Mrs. Rose Fritz Flood, have strangely disappeared.

The charge was made in Los Angeles at a special deposition hearing in connection with Mrs. Gavin's suit for a $4,000,000,000 daughter's share of the $18,000,000 Flood fortune.

The letters were addressed to her by Mrs. Flood's parents, Mrs. Gavin testified and were signed "Grandpa and Grandma Fritz." She indicated she believed they were stolen after she started investigations to learn if she was entitled to a share of the Flood estate.

Mrs. Gavin, according to a United Press dispatch from Los Angeles told that she was taken from California to Kansas City after the death of Rose Fritz, first wife of Flood, whom she believed to be her mother, Mrs. Gavin said, and there was baptized as Constance May Flood. In 1901, she returned to San Francisco, and after a conference, was entered in the Ramona convent at Alhambra under the name of Constance May Stearn.

Many letters she received from "Gandpa and Grandma Fritz" of Kansas City during the ensuing eleven years, have disappeared, she said, and she believes them stolen, although she cannot say when.

Mrs. Gavin indicated, however, that they were removed after she had started investigations to learn if she was entitled to a share in the estate of Flood, who died in 1926.

Whether Mrs. Gavin deliberately evaded her supposed mother, Mrs. Eudora Willette, or whether she really believed herself to be the child of Mrs. Rose Flood, the first wife of the late James Flood, was a question which occupied much of the session.

Questions calculated to show that Mrs. Gavin knew that Mrs. Willette was alive before 1926 when the elder woman's name appeared in San Francisco newspapers were put to the witness by Attorney Garrett McEnerney, representing the heirs. Mrs. Gavin refused to admit that she remembered receiving any information concerning Mrs. Willette before that year.

Her first meeting with her supposed mother was on Labor Day, 1927, in San Francisco, she stated. Mrs. Willette told her that Flood was her father, Mrs. Gavin said.

"I do not remember having seen Mrs. Willette before and I considered her conversation very frivolous," said Mrs. Gavin. "She asked me what kind of face powder I used. It did not seem posible that she could be my mother."

Mrs. Gavin testified yesterday that she was positive in her own mind that she was the daughter of Mrs. Rose Flood, who died many years ago.

Letters from Mrs. Willette to Mrs. Gavin, signed "Mother," were introduced in the hearing. A letter from Mrs. Willette to Mrs. Gavin dated 1909 was never received. Mrs. Gavin testified. She also disclaimed any recollection of a Miss Mary Sweeney and a Mrs. J. E. Moses, who addressed letters to her claiming that they were her nurse and her childhood friend, respectively.

It has been ruled by Superior Judge George H. Buck that Mrs. Gavin must prove her contention that she is the daughter of James Flood and of his first wife, Mrs. Rosinda Flood. The trial will proceed on that basis in the superior court here.

Mrs. Gavin claimed in her petition for a part of the $18,000,000 Flood estate that she was the daughter of Mrs. Rosinda Flood and of James Flood. Later when Mrs. Willette came forward and claimed that she was the mother of Mrs. Gavin, and that the father was James Flood, Mrs. Gavin amended her petition so that heirship might be claimed in either event.

Mrs. Willette has now reversed her story and claims that the father was one, James Cannon, a property man in the old Grove street theatre in San Francisco. John Taaffe, however, one of the attorneys for Mrs. Gavin, has thrown doubt on this statement, when he showed after the alleged birth of her daughter that Mrs. Willette had met Cannon ter, but did not recognize him.

Road System Due for Boost

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Apr. 2 (UP)—California's paved highway system is expected to surpass that of all other states in the nation within 8 years.

That is, if the state continues to construct new highways at the rate it has since the 3-cent gasoline tax act was adopted in 1927.

Already the state's system includes 8,970 miles of paved county roads and 4,118 miles of paved state roads, according to a survey just completed by the California Highway Patrol. The study was made to determine how many traffic officers should be assigned to each county in the state.

There are now a total of 140 miles of county highways in San Mateo county, the report shows, of which 95 miles are paved. State highways in the county total 75 miles, and all of these are paved.

Los Angeles county has the greatest paved mileage of any county in the state, both in state and county highways, it was revealed. This county showed 203 miles of paved state highways and 1,397 miles of paved county roads.

Second place is held by San Joaquin county, which has 103 miles of paved state highways and 607 miles of county roads. San Bernardino ranks third, with 234 miles of state highways and 436 miles of county roads.

"Information obtained by this survey will be used for making up a complete index system," said Frank G. Snook, chief of the state division of motor vehicles.

"This index will combine factors relative to accident hazard, such as population and traffic density, motor vehicle registration, etc."

Under paved roads listed all concrete-asphaltum, concrete and macadam roads. Classed as unpaved were all dirt, graveled, graded and oiled highways.

Tony Zar, restaurant man of Millbrae, was brought to the county jail yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Tom Maloney on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his partner in the restaurant business. He is being held in lieu of $250 bonds.

Rear Admiral To Inspect Site Of Dirigible Base

Will Be Accompanied By Architect of Air Port Buildings

The United States navy dirigible base at Sunnyvale will be inspected this month by Rear Admiral A. L. Parsons, chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, according to an announcement made this week. Admiral Parsons is expected to arrive in San Francisco during the week of April 13.

At the same time F. W. Southworth, civilian architect commissioned to design the Sunnyvale hangars and other buildings, will be in San Francisco to accompany the admiral on his inspection, Lieutenant Commander E. L. Marshall, in charge of construction, announced.

Rear Admiral Parsons is now enroute to the Puget Sound Navy Yard at Bremerton, Wash., where he is due April 6. On the way south he will inspect the ammunition base at Hawthorne, Nev., and arrive in San Francisco April 12. He will visit Mare Island April 13 and then make his inspection of Sunnyvale, according to his present schedule.

He is accompanied by Rear Admiral Ridley McLean, budget officer of the navy.

Southworth, the architect, is due in San Francisco tomorrow to confer with Lieutenant Commander Marshall in advance of Admiral Parsons' arrival. Chief Clerk Nicola Ullo reported to Marshall yesterday to assist in the clerical work on the Sunnyvale project.

Enterprise Bakery Changes Ownership

The Enterprise Bakery at 2620 Broadway, which has been conducted for the past six years by Jerome Orecchia, was sold on Wednesday to A. Karsch of Palo Alto, who took charge this week. The new owner has been in the bakery business at Palo Alto for a number of years and comes to Redwood City with a splendid reputation as a manufacturer of bread and pastries.

Mr. Orecchia will take a much needed rest before engaging in any new enterprise and with his family will make his home in San Mateo.

To Open Bids for Bay Shore Highway

The department of public works has announced that bids will be opened on April 8 for the remaining three miles of the Bay Shore highway in the county. The bids will be opened at the office of the department of public works in Sacramento.

Work is proceeding ripidly on the concrete bridge across Redwood creek, and this section of the road will soon be opened to use.

JAILED AS DRUNK

Domican Balcazar, 44, laborer, was sentenced to two days in the county jail this week by Judge Edward J. McAuliffe on a charge of being drunk. Balcazar was arrested by Officers Snider and Fogarty of the Redwood City police department.

REPORT OF POLITICS IN S. F. COUNTY JAIL SITE ANGERS SUPERVISORS

"Grand Jury Should Investigate Charges" Says Supervisor Poole. "Looks Like Rotten Political Scheme"

Members of the board of supervisors of San Mateo county resent implications which have been received from San Francisco to the effect that the supervisors of this county were delaying the selection of a site for the proposed San Francisco jail on the coastside of this county.

Speaking of the reports which have been received to the effect that the supervisors of this county were "playing politics" in the selection of a site for the San Francisco county jail, Supervisor John Poole, representative of the third township said yesterday, "I think it's a lot of buncumb. I can't find out where the story originated. I have not talked with any of the other members of the board concerning the proposition of placing San Francisco's jail in the county. The San Francisco supervisors were to have placed a number of sites before the supervisors of this county for a first, second, third and fourth choice. They have not done this, and so far as I know, nothing has been done about it."

Supervisor Poole stated that he could not determine whether the story had been hatched up in this county by enemies of the members of the board of supervisors, or whether it had come from a San Francisco source. "I think it rotten," said Supervisor Poole indignantly. "For my part I would welcome a grand jury investigation. I think that the matter should be placed in the hands of the grand jury and that they should run down this report to its source."

"To my knowledge there has never been a word of discussion among San Mateo county supervisors of any jail site anywhere" said Supervisor Manuel Francis of Halfmoon Bay. "It is most unfair to attempt to pin charges on the board in connection with a matter that the board as a whole has never discussed.

"Two San Francisco supervisors and Sheriff W. J. Fitzgerald of San Francisco approached us about six weeks ago and wanted to talk about a site. Even then we did not hold any discussion. Supervisor Hickey, I believe, told the San Francisco men that he thought San Mateo county people would not object to any site selected, unless it was found that the site might interfere with home building or other developments of the future."

The store which ired the members of the county board of supervisors appeared Tuesday in a San Francisco newspaper. The story was in part as follows:

"The politicians' scheme, it was reported, is to offer San Francisco 'a choice' of one tract with the following ultimatum:

" 'Take it at our figure or you don't build your jail house in our county.'

"That the ultimatum can carry plenty of authority was assured by the fact that the San Mateo county supervisors have not put anything in writing that might commit them to allow San Francisco to build its jail down the peninsula.

"The tract for which pressure is being brought to bear is known as Butts ranch and is owned by the Mid-State Oil Company. The price is $140,000. It is south of Halfmoon Bay and about thirty-two miles from San Francisco. It contains 280 acres.

"This was compared with the Pillar Point site of 243 acres offered at approximately $100,000 and nearly ten miles closer to the city.

"The city engineer reported the latter property as the only one of twelve offered which has an adequate water supply. Private engineers, retained by the Mid-State company, disagreed.

Action Delayed

"The buildings and lands committee of the board of supervisors met late Tuesday, but took no action. They took things under advisement. Supervisor Warren Shannon, chairman, said he hoped for action next week.

" 'The grand jury,' Shannon said, 'has been asking questions. They seem to be getting anxious. They want to know why we are not doing something—although we're doing considerable.

"The delay since November 4, when the bonds were voted, was ascribed by Sheriff William J. Fitzgerald to 'considerable pulling and hauling and perhaps some politics.' "

The report met with an indignant rejoinder from Supervisor T. L. Hickey of South San Francisco. Hickey is reported to have said:

"Unless I am mistaken the people of San Mateo county are getting tired of the methods of some of these San Francisco politicians and are pretty soon going to tell them to keep out of our county altogether."

Kiwanians Debate S. F. Annexation

The meeting of the Redwood City Kiwanis club was featured this week by one of the most novel programs presented before the club. The program consisted of a debate between two teams consisting of Carl Wagner, manager of the Redwood City branch of the Bank of America, and Mayor D. R. Stafford, supporting the affermative of the question "Resolved that annexation of San Mateo county to the city and county of San Francisco would be to the best interests of the citizens of San Mateo county." The negative side of the question was supported by Edward Harrison, manager of the First National Bank, and B. E. Myers, city treasurer.

The arguments on both sides were ably handled, and considerable humor was introduced into the meeting as well as a great deal of discussion of an informative nature. The decision of three judges was given to the negative debaters.

The debate had been arranged by C. M. Doxsee, chairman of the program committee. The chairman of the meeting was Howard Wood, secretary-manager of the Redwood City chamber of commerce.

Former Flagman Given Jail Term

John Larkim, former flagman at the Broadway crossing, and who was convicted in the superior court here of a statutory offense against a young girl of this city, was sentenced by Judge Buck yesterday. Judge Buck granted the 51-year old man two years probation, one year of which is to be spent in the county jail here.

When convicted before the jury here, the jury recommended that he be sent to the state prison at San Quentin. F. W. Comba, attorney for Larkim petitioned that the flagman be imprisoned in the county jail instead.

Two Changes Made In Clerk's Office

Two changes were made this week in the personnel of the office of County Clerk E. B. Hinman. Harold Anderson, of this city, was appointed to succeed Eugene Cerqui, whose resignation was tendered two weeks ago in order that he might accept a position with A. Carlysle & Co. of San Francisco, and Miss Alma V. Pagganni, of Burlingame, was appointed to succeed Mrs. Laura Collins.

San Mateo Gang Disposed of by Judge G. Buck

Charges Are Dropped Against Mrs. Freaner; All Others Now Sentenced

Judge Buck yesterday freed Mrs. Edna Freaner of charges of burglary which have faced her since the arrest of a group of San Mateo people as a bandit gang. Mrs. Freaner, mother of one child, and soon to become mother to another was freed of all charges. "I won't scold you," said Judge Buck, "I know your condition, and I hope your child will grow up to be a credit to the community." This marks the last of the San Mateo bandits.

George Lewis and John Freaner, husband of Edna Freaner, were sentenced last week from Stockton for a burglary committed in Tracy. They were sentenced to San Quentin for a term of one to 10 years. Both men are also faced with burglary charges in this county, which would prevent their being paroled.

Kaylor Crockett, the third male member of the gang was sent to the Preston reform school until he becomes of age; and Miss Lucille Goodspeed, a sister of Mrs. Freaner, was also sent to a reform school.

Hillsborough Man Faces S. F. Trial

The trial of George Keyston, Hillsborough broker, and former head of the San Francisco stock exchange, and Ray S. Rossiter, former employee of the firm of Leib-Keyston, stock brokers, was proceeding in San Francisco yesterday. The trial was being held in the federal court on charges of embezzlement in connection with the Bray and Haddow peculations.

Explanation of how he was heir to the six stock accounts operated by Jospeh C. Bray and Robert G. Haddow at Leib-Keyston & Co., was made.

Rossitter testified that he met Bray through Elmer J. Griffin, Leib-Keyston employe and tennis star. When Griffin left Leib-Keyston in October, 1926, Rossitter was given all of the Fillmore-Post accounts to handle. He had never had occasion to make any investigation of the account and merely executed orders given by Bray and Haddow, he declared.

Two character witnesses were put on the stand by Theodore J. Roche to establish the profession reputation of Keyston. They were Karl Raiss and William R. Bacon, both stock brokers.

Mrs. Ellen O'Neil, formerly a nurse in Rossitter's household, fixed the time he left in the morning for business as 8:15 o'clock. This was intended to disprove Bray's testimony that he often met Rossitter at Leib, Keyston's office as early as 6:30 a. m.

James W. Bizzo, 38, an electrician, arrested in Daly City for failure to provide for his wife and family, was sentenced Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Edward Farrell of South San Francisco to a term of six months in the county jail.

REDWOOD ICE COMPANY TO BUILD PLANT IN PERRY TRACT HERE

Construction Work To Start Soon on Plant At Corner of Perry Street and Brewster Avenue

Deeds filed in the office of County Recorder T. C. Rice Tuesday show the sale by J. B. Perry of the corner at Brewster avenue and Perry street in the Perry tract to the Union Ice Company, Incorporated. The property, it is understood, is to be used by the company for the new delivery plant for the Redwood Ice Delivery. Construction work will start within the next 90 days, it is reported, with plans to have the new plant ready for the opening of the 1932 spring season.

The property acquired is irregular in shape, having a frontage of 126.56 feet on Brewster avenue and 100.99 feet on Perry street.

Involved in the transaction is the transfer to Perry of portions of the Ice Company's property on Washington street, on which its plant is now located.

Girl Scouts Study Trees

Sequoia district Girl Scouts have taken a novel way of celebrating Conservation Week (March 29-April 4th). A treasure trail was laid throughout the district Monday and twelve members of the high school troop went about the district observing the following outstanding trees:

Three Sequoia sempervirins, one on the high school grounds used the Sequoia high seal.

The Palo Alto tree with its wealth of history tying the band of Scouts of today to the Spanish expeditions of more than a century and a half ago.

The redwood "Methuslah" on the Skyline boulevard, at whose base the Girl Scouts treasure had been buried.

Other trees were identified or studied on the trip.

This same troop planted a deodar in Mezes Plaza on Arbor Day, March 7.

Senior Scouts driving cars were Misses Gladys and Florence Wikoff and Esther Johnson.

April begins with Conservation Week which is appropriately celebrated by associations and club federations everywhere. For the Girl Scouts this is "Do your good turn to the tree week", and there are many good turns to be done.

Trees suffer from diseases just as men do, and often they have to be their own doctors. But the Girl Scout "tree-finder" can tell by the leaves if this particular oak, for example, is suffering. Then if she does not know the remedy for the ailment ,she can write her state forester, park commissioner or some other expert for help.

Trees die, too, of old age, but those who know the way can easily produce new trees from old. Small cuttings will in some cases soon become young saplings. Buds properly grafted know how to draw the sap even from trees of a different species. Seeds come from tree flowers and can be gathered and planted. A tin can or flower pot filled with moist sandy soil and kept in a warm window will help seeds of such future giants as horse-chestnuts and pines to sprout.

The most spectacular way of celebrating Conservation Week is by having a tree-planting in some public place. Then an example is set those whose knowledge of nature lore is too limited for them to realize that a denuded landscape is a potential desert. Reforestation is part of the Girl Scout camp program. Wherever they camp, they plant. So many thousands of trees are added yearly to the nation's woods.

Three Cars Damaged In Crash on Highway

Three cars were slightly injured in a tripple collision at the intersection of Redwood avenue and the Highway late Tuesday afternoon. The crash occurred when Kate Van Dyken, of Redlands, started to make a left-hand turn from the highway onto Redwood avenue, and J. Frank Boucher, of San Mateo, started to pass her car at the same time.

Mrs. VanDyken told Officer Wood of the Redwood City police that she had made a hand signal before turning to the left. Boucher said that he did not see the signal. He struck the left front fender of the VanDyken car, and glanced off to strike the rear end of a car belonging to Peter D. Keenan, of Menlo Park, which was parked on Redwood avenue. Only slight damage resulted to any of the cars.

Gets Ten Days for Disturbing the Peace

Louis Callori, 29, laborer, of Daly City, was sentenced on Wednesday to 10 days in the county jail by Judge Ellis C. Johnson of Burlingame on a charge of disturbing the peace. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Tim O'Rourke and Lawrence Neri.

Held for Theft Of Salinas Car

Officer W. H. Thorpe of the Redwood City police department distinguished himself as a "Sherlock Holmes" this week when he picked out a stolen car from all the other cars on the highway, and arrested C. Dolan, garage man of San Francisco.

Thorpe acted on a "hunch" and stopped a car on the highway. He asked the driver where he got the machine, and when the man answered that it was "borrowed", Thorpe became suspicious. Investigation disclosed that the machine was one stolen in Salinas a month ago.

Dolan was booked at the county jail to be returned to Salinas for trial on the grand theft charge.

Mt. Diablo Park Celebration Set

Opening of Mt. Diablo Park as a state park and the inauguration of the road on a toll free basis will be celebrated on the afternoon of April 26, according to information received by the California State Automobile Association from Contra Costans Associated. There will be an automobile parade from the Ygnacio Valley entrance to the park, where it will be joined by other motor caravans formed at Concord and Walnut Creek. Governor James Rolph, Jr., State Park Commissioners and other officials have been invited to participate.

The Park Commission is purchasing the toll road and several hundred acres of picnic grounds on the portion of the mountain known as Rock City, where the dedicatory exercises will be held.

In preparation for the event the roads are to be put in good condition by the State Highway Commission and parking areas, water facilities, and other accommodations are to be provided by the Division of Parks.

Sea Scouts Unit Shown Through Cordage Plant

Through the courtesy of Herman D. Nichols the Redwood City Sea Scouts were able to make a tour of the Tubbs Cordage Co. factory in San Francisco. Under the guidance of Bert Werder the 16 boys were taken to the rope factory on Third street where the superintendent of the plant and Mr. Nichols escorted them through the various buildings. This is the largest rope factory west of Chicago and manufactures an exceptionally fine quality of hemp rope. The high grade long fiber is imported from the Philippine Islands.

Two hours were spent in visiting the various departments and the boys enjoyed every minute of the time. The tour also proved very educational due to the efforts of the escorting members of the firm, who volunteered much information and cheerfully answered an abundance of questions.

The crew returned by way of San Francisco Yacht Harbor, where an hour was spent looking over the fleet.

New Drivers Are Safe Drivers

Springtime is a particularly dangerous season for the experienced motorist, in the opinion of W. T. Palmer, manager of the replacements department of a company which manufactures brake linings.

Palmer is making a nationwide study of motoring conditions with a view to discovering some hitherto unrecognized reasons for the growing number of automobile accidents. As a result he claims that a majority of accidents are caused by psychological faults of the veteran motorist and that people who are learning to operate a car for the first time are the safest drivers on the road.

Palmer says: "This spring many thousands of new motorists will appear on the highways, earnest in their efforts to pass their license tests and become good drivers. Most of these people are intelligent. They will study traffic rules, pay strict attention to signals and signs and, realizing their lack of motoring knowledge, they will be constantly on the alert to avoid difficulties, keeping to the right, making a turn only when it appears ultra-safe and driving in a generally cautious manner.

"The veteran driver, however, is subject in many cases to an entirely different mental condition. Too frequently he is over-confident of his driving ability and too accustomed to taking chances and appropriating undue privileges. He, feeling secure in his motoring wisdom, is the one most prone to moments of inattention which frequently result in accidents.

"Another way in which the veteran driver is more careless than the neophyte is in the upkeep of his car. To the new owner every squeak, rattle and sputter is something to worry over and have fixed immediately. The old timer lets the body finish become dulled through lack of washing, he neglects lubrication, and he allows his brakes to become dangerously worn and out of adjustment, feeling that his driving skill will offset the need for adjusting and relining. Hence, more accidents. In fact, a vast majority of the country's motoring mishaps are caused by drivers of long experience."

You Never Can Tell

Little acts that seem of slight importance today, may take on Bromdignagian proportions in the perspective of time. Kindnesses done today may bring rich rewards later. This thought is brought home by the story which the United Press tells of a Nevada gambler and a boy who had lost his "wad" in a gambling den. The story goes:

"Back in the old days when Manhattan was a mushroom gold boom mining camp, a gambler tossed $7.50 to a frightened youth who had lost everything he owned at the gaming tables.

"Forget it, kid," said the gambler. Money was the freest article in the camp in those days.

Thirty years later in Las Vegas a bewhiskered tattered od man begged a hurrying business man for a dime for a cup of coffee. The old gambler and the business man recognized each other.

A few moments later the old-time gambling man was seated at a sumptuous dinner —with $15 in his pocket.

A Tactful Rejection Slip

The latest method of providing balm for the grief of a would-be contributor in returning his manuscript was promulgated recently by the editor of the Tsin-Pao, an important Peiping journal. The rejection slip, highly personal and humble, said:

"Your highly venerated manuscript I have read with ravishment! But if I published it the readers of Tsin-Pao would immediately command me to take it in the future as a model, and never again have the audacity to publish anything inferior to it.

"My long experience of literature, however, convinces me that pearls such as yours cannot be produced more than once in ten million years. That is why, etc."—Publishers' Auxiliary.

The Editorial Circuit Rider

(A symposium of editorial comment from California newspapers)
(By United Press)

What is the fundamental cause of the recent prison riots in the Illinois penitentiaries?

California editors have tried to place their "pens" upon the underlying causes but their is no agreement among their editorials.

Political parole boards, the indeterminate prison sentence, the parole system, the dissimilarity of prisoners, and the present prison conditions and management, all are under fire as leading the insubordination and rioting.

The Chico Record says: "The prisoners complain that 'the poor man hasn't got a chance with the board,' that 'influence' counts too much, that only three of the 10 members of the board actually sit in a hearing, that prisoners are not allowed time enough to state their cases, that they are shouted down and sworn at and forced to wait hours when called for a specified time."

"It appears all the trouble in Joliet penitentary is due to the state's indeterminate sentence law. It is a foolish law at that," summarizes the Hollister Free-Lance. "It is a confession of incompetency on the part of the state; that its judiciary is incapable of passing just sentences."

In pointing out the types of men that a prison must assimilate the San Francisco Call says, "We are also told that men in prison are "all alike." But why should they be "all alike" in prison when they are not "all alike" outside. They were not alike when free. They did not respond to identical forces before they went to prison, but we lump them together and expect them to be alike when they are caged. We will not begin to solve our crime problems until we stop trying to treat all men who break laws as if they are alike."

"If prisons are overcrowded—if conditions are unsanitary, uncomfortable and such as to provoke discontent and desperation—if those in charge of prisons are cruel and inhuman toward prisoners, the public should know about it," writes the editor of the Pasadena Star-News. "There is something seriously out of joint in the great prisons of the United States, else these periodic bloody riots among prisoners would not occur."

The editor of the Humboldt Standard has "little sympathy for the prisoners in this (Joliet) case." But says the editor, "at the same time there is a natural disposition to ask whether any blame can be attributed to the system or the authorities or society as a whole."

"Maybe Illinois could stop its prison riots if it would pardon more of its criminals or turn them back on society on parole as many states are doing," sarcastically writes the editor of the Santa Barbara Press. "If they were pardoned or paroled, the wardens could close up and go home."

What's In A Name?

There's a city in Norway with five names —all of them bad. It is known as Trondhjem, Trondhejm, Nidaros, Trondheim, or Drontheim, and the inhabitants, it is said, are divided over the spelling or naming of their town. What they need in Norway is a few California real estate men to think up euphoneous Spanish names for such places, and then invent pleasant historical backgrounds and romances concerning the names. They must indeed be backward in Norway.

An Example Worthy of Imitation

The French police have ruled that no permits will be issued to foreigners to drive taxis in France. It is said that many of the Paris taxi drivers do not speak good French. Well, there's a thought. If permits were only issued for taxi driving in this country to American citizens, and those who speak English correctly it would effect quite a turn over in the taxi driver situation. And it's a plan that might with good effect be extended to other lines of endeavor—violinists and orchestra conductors, for instance.

Boy, Page Hercules!

If you are inclined to think that you are overworked, and find it a bit boresome to toddle down to the office in the morning, just give a thought to Mrs. Kate Ralph, 83, of Cromwell, Connecticut. The United Press tells us that every day for the past 66 years she has risen at 5 a. m., worked on her farm for an hour or so and then walked three miles to work in a toy factory.

When the whistle blows she walks home, delivering papers on the way, finishes her chores and calls it a day.

Ho-hum, if our wife was only like that we could take a permanent vacation. But then —ho-hum.

Hold Your Horsepower

As a nation Americans were guilty of more reckless driving last year than ever before in their history. Motor accidents killed 32,500 people and injured 960,000. Reviewing these flures Collier's Weekly observes that "the only encouraging aspect of this appalling loss lies in the fact that recklessness was its principal cause—and if carelessness and over confidence kill and injure so many, carefulness and consideration can prevent such losses."

A candidate for the state legislature from Yazoo county, Mississippi, is named Pine Burr. His friends say that he'll stick.

Chapter 72

After A Year

A year later Mr. and Mrs. Steve Montgomery were leaving their home for a visit to New York. The marriage of lively Sally Todd to sober, steady-going Steve Montgomery had been a sensation in their home town.

"To think that she had to come home to find a husband, after all that stay in the east," the gossips had said. But Sally was indifferent to their chatter, and Steve was so happy that he heard nothing at all.

It had been the great piece of luck, he often thought, to have Sally return. That she would shortly agree to marry him was something he hadn't dared dream. It was not until several weeks after her arrival that he managed to gather up the courage to call on Her. He found her looking rather pale and listless, but he told himself that country air would soon put her right.

And Sally never told anyone of the ordeal she had been through—how Dr. Randolph had induced her to take a drug cure, and how, after several months, she had been discharged, only to fall back into her old habits, necessitating further treatment.

She had been glad to go home after that. It was pleasant to be among people who knew only one's good side. And Steve's adoration had been very flattering. Gradually she began to look forward to his visits, and, when he asked her to marry him, she found herself consenting, with never a backward glance at the dreams on which she had tried to build her life. A career seemed to mean very little now. And Steve seemed to mean a great deal.

"I remember the time Lois and I ran away to New York," she told Steve in the train. "I was so excited that I saw stars."

And she grew silent as she recalled the intervening years. The struggle for a career, the wearisome days of hospital training, after she had decided that the screen held no career for her; the dreadful time when she allowed the drug habit to fasten itself upon her ;the heartbreaking days when she quarreled with Lois and turned against her friend. That memory hurt dreadfully, but she did not try to dodge it. It was part of the picture of the past. And then James Walton's illness and his death months later. Poor Lois! Sally sighed so deeply that Steve looked up from his paper in concern. "Just tired," she said, "from all the rush of getting away."

She had written Lois that they were coming, but she had a feeling of shyness when she thought of seeing her friend again. Still Lois was not one to harbor a grudge, thank heaven. Her reply had shown that. She urged Sally and Steve to be her guests at her home in the country. And they had accepted gladly.

"Lois's husband must have been a queer chap," Steve was saying "None of use ever met him. I wonder whether she was happy with him?"

And Sally, who had grown unexpectedly tactful, said:

"He was sort of eccentric — bound up in his business affairs, but I think he was generous with her, at the last, anyway."

Unknowingly, Sally had spoken the truth. As if to make what amends he could, James Walton had left Lois the bulk of his fortune. And to use it wisely for the benefit of others was her purpose. It gave her occupation, and it made her feel that she had a place in the world.

She saw very few people. Her husband's circle of acquaintances had been very small at his death, and she had no close friends. A few club meetings and teas made up her social life. She had seen very little of Dale Randolph. He had called after her husband's death, but she felt that the past was a barrier between them. She wondered whether he had the same feeling.

But now the coming of Sally and Steve would give her new interests and she looked eagerly to their arrival. She was not disappointed. Sally was not the same person. She was gay, buoyant, a cheerful companion. Just the tonic that Lois needed. And Steve was as she remembered him — serious, reliable, steadfast. The ideal husband for Sally. Lois looked upon their happiness with a sigh.

And Sally was not unaware of Lois's inward dejection. She was so happy herself that she could sence the slightest unhappiness in another — particularly in Lois. And, after a week, she decided that something had to be done. One day when Lois had gone to the city, Sally put Steve to bed, told him that he was to have a chill in a good cause, and telephoned Dale Randolph to come at once.

She almost had a temperature herself when he was perparing to leave, for Lois had not yet come. But she came finally, just as the doctor was stepping into his car. And Sally fled into the house without a word. "Get up," she told her husband, "your illness is over."

"Who's the strange man in the garden with Lois?" asked Steve, as he stood at a window. Sally smiled. She was just a bit curious as to what was being said at that moment. Not much of anything, she guessed. And she was right. Lois and Dale Randolph stood looking at each other. Their eyes met, but they were silent.

Sally turned away and began to tidy the room. "Say," said Steve excitedly, a moment later, "who's that with Lois?"

"Why the agitation?" asked Sally. "Because he just kissed her."

"That's all right," she returned imperturbably. "He's our new brother-in-law."

ODDITIES MAKE ALL FOOL'S DAY A DAILY AFFAIR

Geographical "Foolers" Furnish Jokesters with Much Material

WASHINGTON, April 1 (UP)—April Fool's Day rolls around once each year to give the practical jokers a chance to play their pranks.

But certain geographic oddities make every day in the year an April Fool's Day for many persons.

For example:

Irish potatoes originated in the mountains of Peru and Chile. A famine which followed the fail of a potato crop in Ireland led to study of varieties which would resist disease, and to the production of the better grades of potato known today.

Balsam of Peru

Balsam of Peru originated in the Central American Republic of El Salvador. It was named for its distribution center, rather than for its source.

Panama hats are not made in Panama. Some of the old "forty-niners" returning to the East by way of Panama bought hats made by the women of Ecuador. Most of the so-called Panama hats still are made in Ecuador.

The Canary Islands, where the giant German plane "DO-X" landed on its attempted flight to New York, received their name from the Latin word canis, or dog. The canary birds found there are green.

U. S. Capital

The capital of the United States is not in any city. Washington, technically speaking, is a post office and a railway station. The capital is governed by three commissioners.

The real "city" of London is a tiny patch, a mile square, in the center of the Metropolitan district.

Geography constantly plays April Fool with the Mississippi river and with some of the southern branches of the Amazon. Their sources actually are nearer the center of the earth than their mouths. A river which rises some distance from the Equator—the earth is somewhat "fatter" at the Equator than the Poles—and flows toward it may, if it is long enough, be "higher" at the end than at the start. Regarded in this light the river "flows uphill."

April Fool's day makes playful pranks worth while. But if your tormentor goes too far, ask him the answer to a few geographic "foolers." It doesn't have to be April Fool's Day, however.

BRICK INDUSTRY BOOMING

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The sand-lime brick industry sold $3,146,000 worth of bricks in 1929, according to a preliminary report from the Census Bureau. There are 40 plants manufacturing sand-lime brick, most of them in the Middle Atlantic and Southwestern states.

Is IT WORTH 4¢ to be a perfect hostess?

Cooking with electricity is like having a maid at practically no additional cost!

You simply prepare the food, place it in the oven, set the automatic time and temperature controls, and relax. When friends arrive for dinner you look your best. You are at ease. Your mind is not burdened about the meal. You have time for a friendly chat before being seated. When the moment arrives for serving the main courses, simply take the food from the oven—hot—and perfectly done.

The electric range of today has faster cooking elements—as fast as you'd want them. As for cost, the electric range is priced about the same as any other good range. And electric cooking is economical. The average sum that our customers pay for electricity for cooking is 1c a meal per person!

So when 4c worth of electricity can help you be a perfect hostess, why not have an electric range?—especially when the cost of electricity is less than the cost of one serving of ice cream.

A small payment down will place the electric range of your choice in your kitchen, ready to use. Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the beautiful new electric ranges.

Christmas Box Brings Joy To Man in Artic

Citizens of California do not fully realize the amount of appreciation which their gifts to the Red Cross may engender in some one far away from here, and whose contacts with the outside world are limited. An example of the happiness which the Christmas boxes sent out by the local Red Cross chapter may bring, is contained in a letter recently received by Mrs. C. H. Locker of the local chapter from the northernmost port of Alaska. The letter follows:

U. S. Radio Station,
Bethel, Alaska,
Dec. 26, 1930.
Mrs. C Locker,
Redwood City, California,
Dear Mrs. Locker:-

I received your Christmas package last fall on the second and last trip of the only steamer which comes into this port from Seattle, and opened it yesterday. I wish to thank you and your chapter of the Red Cross very much. I cannot see how you can tell so nearly just what a fellow needs, and with such a variety and everything just right, it must take a wizard of a mind reader.

Your folder of Redwood City is sure quite enticing, and although I am not in the market for any real estate, I might get some native Esquimo with a very indefinite claim upon miles and miles of Tundra to trade a little real estate with some Redwood City citizen. This section of Alaska is about one third low moss covered land between slews and lakes, in the Delta region of the Kuskokwim and Yukon rivers. The Kuskokwim runs for the last nearly two hundred miles into the Bearing along the mountains to the southeast, and the Yukon runs near the mountains to the north, and in between is miles and miles of "Tundra." Reindeer were introduced into this region by the government for the natives about twenty years ago, and now number into many thousands, but there seems to be not so much of a market for them at present. Also the Bearing is frozen over so that no boats come north of the Aleutians during the winter ,and transportation is a problem. In the summer, it is impossible to go anywhere through the Tundra country without a boat, and in the winter it is about as impossible to travel without a dog team, and they have to wait until winter to work the Deer much. They brand them about the same as cattle, or rather crop the ears or some distinguishing mark for ownership of fawns. The branding is not very good, as it grows over with hair again on deer, unlike cattle or horses.

About the chief industry with cash involved is trapping, and the country has many Foxes, Mink and Muskrats. The natives chiefly fish in the summer, and trap in the winter. They dry the fish, Salmon almost exculsively, in the summer for themselves and dogs during the winter.

The natives from here around the Delta of the lower Yukon and past Nome and the northern slope of the Artic range are Esquimos, and quite distinct from the Indians of the interior and southeast. They are very much Japanese in appearance, and many of them look more like Japs than the Japanese themselves. They are just emerging from the "savage and heathen" stage, due to the altruistic efforts of Moravian Missionaries, government teachers, and Russian priests, and also due to the natural efforts of many sourdoughs, of many nationalities fast changing the population of the country from that of two distinct races into one mixed race. Out away from centers of white population still, they tell me that the natives live in small Igloos mostly of Tundra moss, and have enough wood usually during the winter to build a small fire to make tea twice daily if they are lucky, but never by any extravagant imagination could they have a fire for warmth. They have beat the white race by several generations at least in trial marriage experiments, and I believe where the pious white has not molested, it works quite efficiently. One child per year to each adult native woman, with an average of one of ten growing to maturity. The babies are born into the one room Igloo which reeks to heaven of rotten fish and seal oil and native tanned skins, and natural selection certainly gives them a trial between then and maturity. The sad lament of the good missionaries is that taking these children and giving them a good education, they just naturally drift back into the dirt and smell again. I think I understand their viewpoint, tho, for being raised on a farm, the smell of horse manure makes me homesick even yet, while probably being very repulsive to a city born and sterilized citizen. Hi-ho. At least, to a child who has been raised and kept alive from infancy on rotten sealoil, it certainly would not have any repulsive reactions to such food.

Last summer a Dr. Hrdlika, curator of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington was in this country studying and collecting specimens of their bones. He said that the original Esquimo came from a Siberian tribe which settled in Japan and along the Alaskan coast. In Japan they mixed with another aboriginal race, but here the natives are almost the pure original Siberian descendents.

Well, I must get busy and get the chow. You mipht be interested to know just how and why I spend the glorious days and wonderful nights up here in the old uncles attic. The Signal Corps operates the "Washington Alaska Military Cable and Telegraph System," and this is part of it. The Telegraph part is just about obsolete, as all of the old original land lines constructed and run by the Signal Corps from Valdez to Nome and back have been abandoned, and radio is used almost exclusively from all points except Seward and other coast points towards Seattle. We are the nervous system of the country and some pessimistic individuals claim that it would be about as well to send us and a few more government employees out and give the country back to the natives. The good old uncle, however, furnishes me with a nice seven room house to rattle about in, and I have made it quite comfortable, for besides the office and operating rooms, I have a nice reading room for sourdoughs and native kids—mostly the latter—and a shop, cache, and storeroom. Being a bacheler, I have plenty of room to whistle occasionally. Doing the own cooking sometimes gets monotonous, but for every loss there is a gain, for it is rather convenient to have the bed-room, restahrant, shop and recreation hall all under one roof. The commuting problem is extremely simple here. I have to send out weather reports each of the seven days in every week and ranging from 12:45 a. m. to 4 p. m., so I don't get much chance to take in the neighboring towns, but most of the local world passes by my door and drops in occasionally.

Again thanking you for the nice presents, and hoping that you may have had as merry and carefree a Christmas as I have had, I will remain your very sincerely,

Lee S. Gardner.

MENLO PARK

Work on the large campus building at Menlo Junior College was started this week. Many local men are employed on the structure.

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge arrived from Washington during the week very tired after the busy session of congress but hopeful of returning prosperity, the result of wise legislation enacted during the recent session of congress. After a rest Mr. Shortridge will address the legislature at Sacramento on the work of congress. Mr. Shortridge is one of the most popular senators in Washington and one of the best informed on the country's needs. He will seek re-election next year, and from present indications he will have no serious opposition. Mr. Shortridge should be kept in Washington. He has done more for California than any senator ever sent to the capital. Shortridge should be kept there.

Grand Trustee Shortridge, accompanied by a large delegation from Menlo Park, N. S. G. W., paid an official visit to Pescadero Parlor last week. After the routine business a banquet was served. A few of the Native Sons belonging to the parlor came fifteen miles to be present at the meeting. Shortridge delivered a stirring address to the organization.

Mrs. Rabel, the popular librarian, announces that more than two hundred books a week are taken from the library by children and adults. This is a good omen which speaks volumes for the people of Menlo Park. Clean reading is certain to have a moral effect upon the community.

Easter Sunday will be observed in all the local churches by extra services. Augmented choirs will sing carrols and hymns in praise of the day. At the Catholic church masses will be celebrated at 8 and 10:30 o'clock, while special services will be held in the Presybyterian and Episcopal churches.

St. Joseph's Alumni Association received holy communion in a body in the Church of the Nativity last Sunday morning. About one hundred went to the altar rail. The breakfast was enjoyed at Gumwood Inn.

Ross Cox, manager of the Fenton Gables subdivision, was a classmate of Knute Rockne, the noted football coach who was killed in an airplane accident this week. Cox on hearing the sad news Tuesday wept bitterly for he knew and loved Rockne. A school day friendship grappled the two men like hooks of steel. This friendship went down through the years. No wonder that tears welled in the eyes of Cox as he learned the fate of his boyhood companion.

Owing to the street improvements now going on at Stanford Park five new dwellings were started this week in that choice location. Street improvements will lure the home seeker. If some one could muzzle the calamity howler more street work would be done in Menlo Park and more homes would go up.

The last card game of the series conducted under the auspices of the Native Daughters will take place next Tuesday evening. A number of good prizes are to be awarded that evening.

Next week contracts are to be awarded for the construction of three dwellings at Atherton, the aggregate of cost of which will be over $100,000. There is no doubt that Atherton will be the exclusive residential district of the peninsula.

About one half of the curb work at Stanford Park has been completed. It appears to be satisfactory to all the residents of that city. City Engineer Mehl has given this part of the Wood contract his special attention. The work is highly commended by all.

Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Eyre have opened their palatial home at Atherton and have returned from the city where they passed the winter.

The wild pigeons that have been here in large numbers all winter have caught the spirit of the refrain, "When It's Spring Time in the Rockies" and have departed to that region. Only a few flocks remain. They'll be back when winter comes again.

J. C. Bennett recently leased the pretty Spiller cottage on Park Lane, Atherton. Mr. Bennett is an expert accountant with offices in San Francisco.

Captain Fred E. Whitaker and Mrs. Whitaker had as week-end guests at their place in the Santa Cruz mountains on March 21 and 22, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gilbert, Miss Florence Gilbert, Marian Gilbert, James E. Murray and Chas. Whitaker. Charles has completely recovered from his recent illness and is again attending school.

James T. Cotter, an old timer in this community, passed away at his home in Palo Alto last week and was interred in Holy Cross cemetery on Saturday. The deceased was a native of Ireland, aged 78 years. He is survived by his widow, Sarah Cotter, two sons, James T. and C. E. Cotter, and a daughter, Mrs. K. Mossnner.

Through East Palo Alto has been admitted to the Menlo Park fire district and is now receiving 100 per cent fire protection, it is understood that the housing arrangements for the apparatus will not be completed till about July Deputy Fire Chief L. N. Brown is in charge of the district. Captain Whitaker states that Brown is an experienced fireman and fully capable of handling any emergency in the East Palo Alto district.

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN IN TANFORAN RACING SEASON

Under bright March skies with typical racing weather, the Pacific Coast Breeders Association launched its spring racing meet this week at the San Bruno oval, Tanforan. More than 10,000 fans gathered at the big track for the opening session, which was featured by the Inaugural Handicap. Right events were offered the first day with seven on the program for every day thereafter in the 21-day meeting.

Only one interruption will occur during this meeting and that will be Good Friday when the association will close the track for the day. The following day another feature race, the Tanforan spring special, will be offered.

At this meeting, more than at any other yet staged by the association, there is an array of horse flesh that represents the finest runners on the American turf. Practically all the star mounts from the Caliente meeting have come to Tanforan to participate in the big events to be staged there. Some of the best riders in the country have come north to ride under their stable colors at the San Bruno session.

Perhaps no where in California sports will a more cosmopilitian crowd be found than that visiting the races at Tanforan, where men and women from every walk of life follow their favorites with equal interest.

With fair weather assured, the crowd attending the Tanforan spring special tomorrow (Saturday) bids fair to be one of the greatest ever assembled at a race track in the West. The feature will attract the finest horses on the coast and should be one of the most thrilling contests ever run off in the San Bruno oval.

The track is faster this season than it has ever been before, but at the same time a proper cushion has been maintained so as not to cause injury to any of the thoroughbreds contesting.

Ingraham Maps Bear's Plans For Football

LOS ANGELES, Apr. 2—(UP)—There will be no such thing as the "Ingram system" on University of California football teams while Coach Navy Bill Ingram holds sway.

Ingram made this plain during the course of a talk before alumni of California here. "I realize it is impossible for a coach and a team to get along without the support of its alumni, and I hope, therefore, that it never will be referred to as 'Ingram's team.' It's your team as well. And I don't want the team plays called the 'Ingram system,' he said.

"We don't expect to win all our games the first year out, and we don't expect to lose them all. We hope to win modestly and we hope our defeats won't come too often. You alumni will never be ashamed of the efforts of your team."

Ingram said he was impressed with California's material after spending two weeks with the spring practice turnout.

He succeeded Coach Clarence "Nibs" Price after a disastrous season which saw California lose its two biggest games of the year to Stanford and Southern California, the latter by a 74 to 0 score. Price remained as basketball coach and his five captured the title in the southern division of the Pacific Coast Conference, losing to the University of Washington, northern division champions, in a three-game playoff.

BROTHER OF DON MOE TURNS GOLF PROFESSIONAL

PORTLAND, Ore., April 2 (UP)—Roy Moe, brother of Don Moe, Walker cup player and former Western amateur champion, has turned professional. The Alderwood Country club—home course of the Moe's, Dolp's and other prominent golfers, has announced the appointment of Roy Moe as club professional. Moe is a native of Minneapolis, started his golfing career as a caddy here and has an enviable record in Pacific Northwest and Oregon state qualifying rounds during the past few years.

WITH THE "BIRDS"

Brick Allain, acting captain of the Eagles, was all smiles Sunday when his imported ball tossers lived up to all he said about them. The local club surely made a wise move when they allowed the fiery redhead to have free reign in selecting players to strengthen their ball team.

"Twice as good as we were last year", piped up Manager Bourquin before the game, and on their first appearance the Eagles made Harry's words ring true.

A nice word can be said of the way the Eagles hustled on and off the ball field. That is the kind of stuff that improves the looks of a ball club, and also speeds up the ball game, which pleases the spectators.

Ray Farrel may have looked strange to some who have never seen Ray play third before, but it isn't strange to him, as he passtimed on the hot corner for five years. He had a world of courage in going after hard-hit balls, and at this time Ray claims that this is his season.

Scorekeeper Denny McGuire is ing to write down the names of Wegner and Rossi a lot of times this year, as that combination is going to knock off a lot of double plays. It is a treat to watch these two boys work together, and incidently they are a couple of good hitters.

Hatley, well now everybody knows this nice kid, who is a better chucker this year than ever before. The few innings he worked Sunday he showed more speed, wonderful control, and a fast breaking curve ball that Brick had a hard time holding on to.

Al Bechet worked out a few innings, and he says that he thinks that this is his year. Al can dig them out of the dirt at first with the best of them, and is going to be key man of the Eagles signal system.

Gene Jordan and Stumpy didn't have much to do, but these two boys are going to do some fancy flychasing this year, besides getting their share of base-hits.

We missed Dutch Theime Sunday, and there was a rumor that he was out scouting for ball players for his Twilight Team.

Art Jensen was out trying to uncover some material for his indoor ball team. After cleaning up in Volley Ball, Art is looking for new fields to conquer.

Frank Jester, the big chucker from the Olympic Club, didn't work very hard Sunday, as he had pitched the day before, but he threw enough to make the boys behind the plate agree that he is a pretty fair chucker.

Clyde Lutje was out in the outer gardens for a few frames. This kid has possibilities as a hitter.

Well, folks, I hope to see you at our big dance on April 11, and then come out and watch us take the Foresters Lunch team into camp at our opening game, and maybe we will have a band to entertain you.

SPEAKING of SPORT

BY FRANK GETTY

Just to show the world that boxing hasn't lost all of the rugged qualities it used to possess when bouts were brawls and arenas were barges, Al Singer and his manager Hymie Caplin, staged a dandy fight in the office of Tom McArdle, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden.

While there is no effort being made here to condone such boisterous conduct, one does feel inclined to chuckle a bit over the affair for this sort of a fracas stands out in bold relief from the less than violent tactics so often displayed in and about the ring these days.

Singer, it is recalled, once was lightweight champion of all the world. He won the title by a sudden knockout over Sammy Mandel, the one-time Rockford (Ill.) sheik. Having thus vested himself of a crown, Singer went on to drop this bauble to Tony Canzoneri, little Brooklyn Italian, in Al's first defense of his title. The knockout by Canzoneri, like that of Mendell, was a Round one happening.

Shorn of his title, Singer retired somewhat from the public view, but bobbed up in McArdle's office the other day. Al's brother, Louis, was with him. They encountered Caplin who was accompanied by his right bower, Yussel Levy.

"Where's that 20 grand you cheated me out of?" Singer asked. He punctuated his query with an overhand right to Caplin's jaw. The fight was on. It continued until Singer picked up a pair of heavy brass cuspidors, and made for Caplin. McArdle had taken no part in the proceedings until this time, robbed Al of his weapons and the war was over. The rival groups were escorted by special officers to their favorite physicians for treatment of their injuries which proved minor.

Singer, in mentioning "twenty grand," referred to his share of his purse in the Canzoneri bout.

Caplin, in declaring that he "never cheated Singer of a cent," pointed out that if he had not paid his boy, "Al has waited a long time to ask for his money."

The moral of course, is that it's a pity Al didn't display the same fighting tatics against Canzoneri as against his former pal and manager.

Portland Course Put In Shape

PORTLAND, Ore., April 2, (UP)—The Portland Golf Club course is being lengthened and trapped and the rough will be allowed to grow in preparation for the holding of the Western Amateur championship to be played July 13-18. A large entry list, including Dr. O. F. Willing, Frank Dolp, Eddie Hogan, Malcolm MacNaughton and other star Portland golfers, is expected.

SCHOOL RELAYS PLANNED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 2 (UP)—The ninth annual national high school relay carnival sponsored by Marquette University will be held at the Hilltop stadium, May 2. Thousands of prep athletes from nine or ten states and Canada have competed in the meet in past years.

Redwood Batsmen to Meet Walworth Club

Manager Herm Fleishman has arranged another practice game for his Redwood City baseball team at Sequoia field next Sunday afternoon with the Walsworth Company club of San Francisco. The visitors are an undefeated aggregation and have some of the most promising ball players in the bay district in their line-up. Their pitching staff includes Coulter, Hollister and Esposita.

Manager Fleisman has not announced his pitcher for Sunday. He will be behind the plate himself and the rest of his line-up will include Brook at first, Al Russell and Joe Britschgi at second, Haruff at third, Hedge, short stop, Lawler, left field, Herm, center field, and Stephens, right field.

The game will start at 2:30.

LONDON, April 2 (UP)—Large numbers of boys schools are deserting soccer football and turning to Rugby. Better fixtures and prospects to play after leaving school are given as leading reasons.

Wellingborough, for many years one of the strongholds of association football, is taking up Rugby this term. One of the chief arguments advanced in its favor is that 30 boys can be accomodated on one field instead of 22. Many schools during recent years have been forced to scratch their soccer engagements because of cup-ties and league matches.

MOURNED

Knute Rockne, whose achievements as football coach at Notre Dame made himself perhaps the most outstanding director of athletics in the United States, was one of nine killed in an airplane crash at Bazaar, Kan., when a Western Air Express exploded in mid-air Rockne's record as a football coach was without doubt the most outstanding of any in the nation, the Irish, or Ramblers as his teams were called, acquiring a reputation for being the best coached, smoothest playing, and most nearly invincible of any eleven. Rockne was enroute to Los Angeles, where he planned to make arrangements for a series of football pictures to be made at Notre Dame, when the accident happened.

CHICAGO, Mar. 31— (UP) — Football's greatest genius has departed with the death of Knute Kenneth Rockne.

An immigrant boy who came to this country from Norway at the age of 5, Rockne rose to heights unscaled by any other football coach and died at the zenith of his career.

From 1917, when he succeeded Jesse Harper as head coach of football at Notre Dame, through 1930, Rockne's teams won the amazing total of 111 games, while losing only 13 and tying six.

During the past two seasons Notre Dame won 19 consecutive games and undisputed claim to the National Gridiron championship.

Rockne's football teams were famous for their speed, finesse and precision.

In football players he demanded brains, speed and big hands. Two of his greatest quarterbacks, Harry Stuldreher, one of the "Four Horsemen," and Frank Carideo, all-American field general in 1929 and 1930, both fulfilled these requirements.

Rockne's speeches to his teams in tight places will ever remain as classic of the gridiron. One of the most famous of these was made between halves of the Northwestern-Notre Dame game in 1925. Northwestern led 10-0 at the half, and it seemed that Notre Dame was to lose its first game in nearly a quarter of a century on old Cartier field at South Bend.

Rockne walked in to the dressing room, and remained silent for several minutes and then said:

"You men have the honor of being the first team to ever quit on me: I'm through with you."

He walked out and left his men to think it over. Notre Dame went out in the final half and scored two touchdowns and won the game, 13-10.

Rockne perhaps developed more raw recruits into football stars than any other coach. Rockne's greatest player, George Gipp, who died on the Notre Dame campus after he had been picked as All-America halfback in 1921, had never played football before Rockne saw him kicking a football on the field one day. Some of his other great players who had never played football before they went to Notre Dame were Kiley, Mehre, Flannagan, Oberst, Mohardt, Welbel, Kizer, Huntsinger and Chilly Walsh.

Other coaches often were jealous of Rockne's successes, some even attributed them to the wealth of material available at Notre Dame.

"That is not true," Rockne said. "We get good material but it's the tradition and environment that enables us to build up some players beyond the average."

After "The Four Horsemen" departed in 1924, football prestige at Notre Dame began to ebb and in 1928 his team lost four games—the largest number of defeats ever suffered by a Rockne team. Rockne's misfortune, however, did not bother him and he came back in 1929 and 1930 with two of the most powerful football teams ever developed.

In 1929 Rockne contracted a serious infection in his legs known as Thrombo Phlebitis and he directed his team from a wheel chair until ordered to bed by his physician. Rockne never fully recovered from this ailment, and had to wear rubber bandages around both legs until his tragic death.

Rockne was the foremost advocate of the shift play which revolutionized offensive play. Notre Dame teams perfected the shift to such an extent that eventually it led to the football rules committee curbing this play by making players come to a dead stop after shifting.

Even as a player Rockne was a pioneer. He was one of the first to see the tremendous possibilities of the forward pass, and as an end on the Notre Dame team in 1911, 1912 and 1913 he became known as one of the best pass receivers in the land.

Rockne had few superiors at handling athletes. He had a different method for every one of them. He specialized in taming down players who found their heads outgrowing their hats. A tackle on one of his teams had a weakness for saving newspaper clippings, and and was not doing so well in one of the Nebraska games.

Between halves Rockne called him aside and remarked:

"Say, that bird is playing rings around you. Guess he doesn't know who you are. Better get out those clippings and show him."

Rockne's tongue spared no one if he thought that person deserved a tongue lashing. Stars as well as subs were upbraided by him if the occasion demanded it.

The untimely end of the coach will leave a breach in the gridiron world which never will be filled. Rockne's spirit, leadership and coaching genius made him stand out above all others.

But even though Rockne's voice and brain have been stilled forever his spirit is certain to linger on and inspire Notre Dame to victories so long as there is a game of football.

News of Knute Rockne's tragic death in an airplane crash Tuesday came as a stunning shock to the student body, priests and professors at Notre Dame University.

Thirty minutes after first reports of the accident were received, the University campus was filled with thousands of anxious friends of the beloved coach of Notre Dame's champion football teams.

An hour later, when the almost unbelievable report was varified, hundreds went directly to the Sacred Heart Church, where they remained all afternoon.

A solemn requiem high mass was celebrated Wednesday morning in the campus church by the Rev. Charles T. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning from Sacred Heart Church.

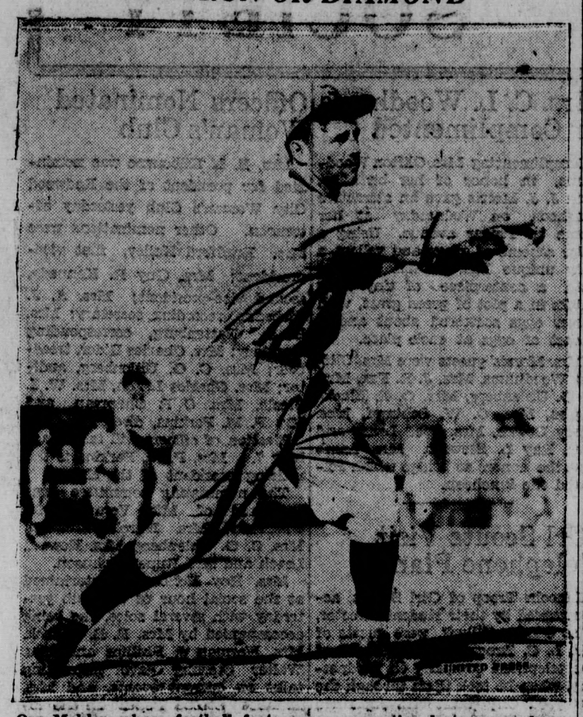
GRIDIRON OR DIAMOND



Ory Mohler, whose football feats were a sensation last season, has turned to baseball now, and is regarded as one of the best shortstops yet to appear in a uniform for the University of Southern California. Mohler's father, "Kid" Mohler, was a star in the same position with the San Francisco Seals, and now coaches at the U. S. Naval Academy.

California Elk Face Extinction

By RUSSELL D. PENNYCOCK

SACRAMENTO, Cal, Apr. 2 (UP) —The native elk, that once roamed California's inner valleys in great numbers, is on the point of extinction, and a last minute attempt has been made in the state legislature to save the remnants of this species.

A bill introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Augustus F. Jewett of Hanford would appropriate $35,000 of state funds to aid in establishing a refuge for the elk.

Approximately 150 of these animals are now quartered on a reservation near Butterwillow, in Kern county, representing all that is left of the hundreds of thousands of the elk which were in California "before the white man came."

"As late as 1850 these elk were more or less adundant," Jewett said. "But with the coming of the Americans to the state, bringing meat hungry pioneers, the elk began to disappear. Changing agricultural conditions further depleted their ranks and the last of them sought safety in the tule swamps of the lower San Joaquin valley, from which they have derived the popular name of 'tule elk'.

"Even in these regions they were not safe and hunters harassed them until they had practically disappeared by the early seventies. Today we would have none left but for the foresight of Henry Miller, of the firm of Miller and Lux, who gathered up the few remaining survivors and protected them so that the herd numbered several hundred."

But the herd now in Kern county has become a problem due to the fact that it has done considerable damage to cultivated areas near the preserve. The Miller and Lux company has offered to sell the land to the state and if the bill passes the legislature the state will purchase the land, while Kern county will put up an amount necessary to complete the land purchase.

"It is hoped that those interested may participate in this effort to preserve the elk," Jewett explained. "The state and county share will not cover the complete cost, about $35,000 additional being needed.

"It seems incredible that the people of California will stand idly by and allow this animal to disappear—one of the last of the native animals of the state. The state will undoubtedly do its part by appropriating some $70,000, but the $35,000 must be raised by popular subscription to make the plan a final success."

WOODSIDE

Selah Chamberlain and family and Ettore Avenali and family have returned to their homes here being the first of those who have been away for the winter to feel the urge to the life of the country.

The two patrols of Woodside Girl Scouts entertained each other on Monday last, one being the host in the morning and the other in the afternoon. A 'treasure hunt' occupied the morning and the afternoon was spent in a search for hidden Easter eggs.

The many friends of Henry Jenkins will be glad to hear that he is again able to be about after a siege of serious illness.

Special Easter services will be held in the Woodside church on Sunday. The children of the Sunday School will take the principal part in the exercises which will also include the reception of six new members into the fellowship of the church. Mrs. Mengler, Mrs. Mathews, Miss Hazel Wolfe, Miss Alice Zaepfel, Miss Edith Ferrari, and Miss Annie Ferrari will enter the membership of the church on that day.

The pupils of the Woodside school have been engaged for the past two months in painting pictures of the California missions. Eighteen of the twenty-one venerable structures have been completed, framed and hung and have attracted a great deal of attention, bringing many visitors to the school. The complete set of twenty-one paintings will be finished shortly and the collection will form a special exhibit during 'Public School Week.'

Three weeks ago we reported the visit to Woodside of Mrs. Tingman, a former resident of the neighborhood whose last previous visit to Woodside had been the day of Garfield's assassination. Mrs. Tingman was looking for a home property and we had hoped that she might find the place she desired in Woodside. Last week, in San Francisco, she was struck by a speeding automobile and almost instantly killed.

The warm spring weather has brought up the grass and the flowers. It has also brought up a plentiful crop of new houses in 'The Glens' where nearly a dozen homes have taken shape to be ready to supply their owners with a vacation retreat when summer comes.

The Woodside Fire District will vote for Fire Commissioner on Monday. The polling place is the Fire House.

ADMINISTRATION ASKED

Letters of administration in the estate of William Edward Nobel have been asked in a petition filed in the superior court here by the widow, Mrs. Minnie N. Nobel. The value of the estate is set at $2500. Noble was a resident of San Bruno, and died recently in San Francisco.

Choral Section Plans Program

Time will be turned backward more than half a century to the days of hoop skirts and sentimental heart songs when the choral section of the Redwood City Woman's Club gives its third annual concert on Friday evening, April 10, at 8:00 at the club house. In an appropriate stage setting the members of the chorus dressed in the daintily ruffled hoopskirt gowns of 1850 will sing a group of old ballads, including two by Stephen Foster, "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" and "Old Folks At Home" and one by Henry Clay Work, "Grandfather's Clock",, which were among the popular songs of their day.

The committee in charge of the stage setting for this part of the program consists of Mrs. A. E. Meyers, chairman, Mrs. A. J. Stebenne, and Mrs Roy Peterson. Mrs. J. T. Heiry is in charge of the costumes.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 2 (UP)—Hollywood was not surprised recently to read dispatches from Vienna telling of an impromptu ride in a ferris wheel by Charlie Chaplin.

A number of myths have sprung up around Chaplin and his yearning for amusement parks.

Out at Venice, one of the ocean pleasure resorts near Hollywood, is an old operator of a merry-go-round who claims Chaplin has been one of his best customers for years.

The comedian, according to the old man, appears suddenly late at night—just before the last stragglers have started home and the merry-go-round is to be closed up until the next day.

Chaplin will pay the old man several dollars and mount one of the horses. The operator knows when Chaplin appears that he will ride for a half hour or more before climbing from the wooden horse and disappearing into the night.

Sometimes, according to the old man, Chaplin is the sole occupant of the merry-go-round. Occasionally he says, he has a few other customers, who do not recognize Chaplin. Trey would never think of looking for a multi-millionaire movie celebriey on a merry-go-round.

The Vienna story has it that Chaplin was mingling with the crowds at an amusement park when he suddenly jumped into the gondola of a ferris wheel and refused to come down for 30 minutes.

Alfred Reeves probably knows more about Charlie Chaplin than any other person. Reeves has been with the comedian since Chaplin arrived in the United States from England. Today he is manager of the Chaplin Studios.

Reeves became very excited when a story was circulated that Chaplin had one mustache which he had used for years. It was said that the comedian was so superstitious that he planned to quit the screen if he ever lost the mustache, which he credited with good luck powers.

"There is nothing to that," Reeves said. "Charlie takes a bit of prepared mustache hair before he goes on the set. He combs it trims it and then sticks it on. He always tends to this himself. When he is through for the day, he tears off the mustache and throws it in a waste basket just like any other actor with a false mustache.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

LOW PRICES OF TINNED GOODS AID TO FARMS

Better Market Forecast As Result of Sales of Can Surplus

By MELVIN LORD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Apr. 2 (UP)—Present low prices of canned goods may presage prosperity for California's growers of fruits and vegetables.

This is the belief of Harry J. Eustace, chief of the division of markets of the California department of agriculture, following a survey of national markets to determine the selling prices of California canned products.

The market analysis survey made by Eustace covered the city markets of more than 50 communities throughout the United States. The data were obtained from newspaper advertisements to assure determination of actual selling prices, Eustace said.

To faciliate the survey, only prices of California canned peaches were considered. However, the general low trend is taken as an indication of the prices of other similar products.

"Growers," Eustace states, "are always interested in knowing at what prices their fruits and vegetables are being sold by the retail stores in distant cities. A survey of these prices indicates that the cost to the consumer the country over is low enough to encourage wide distribution and large consumption.

"This is a healthy trend particularly in view of the surpluses which have occurred this past year in many farm products and which have tended to prevent orderly marketing."

This sale of naturally popular products at prices well within the purchasing power of all classes of consumers will provide a natural method of "house cleaning" for the agricultural industry of the state, it is claimed.

Where surplus stocks gradually have been built up to prevent the canneries from taking care of a normal share of the crops, the low prices will clear the way for the new harvest and are expected to be directly responsible for the absorption, at good prices, of a bumper crop this year.

Lodge of Moose Instituted Here

One of the by-words of the Moose is: "Not just another fraternity." Redwood City's new Moose lodge surely lived up to it last Sunday, March 29, when Harry W. Millspangh, National Director of the Loyal Order of Moose in charge of the Pacific Coast territory, installed this lodge.

Visiting Moose from Sacramento, Santa Rosa, Stockton, San Jose, Santa Cruz and Salinas were present as well as the degree staff and uniformed drill teams of San Francisco and Oakland, to take part in the initiation of 70 of the first unit of charter members.

At 1:15 p. m. Redwood City's Firemen's orchestra under the leadership of Harry Bourquin entertained the visitors and candidates prior to the ceremonies.

At 1:30 Thor Polson from Mills Field originator of sky or smoke writing, and also one of the pioneers of aviation wrote the word "Moose" in the sky in honor of the founding of the Redwood City Moose lodge.

At 1:45 p. m. a group picture was taken of the new candidates, drill teams and visitors.

At 2:00 p. m .to 4:00 p. m. the impressive ceremonies of the institution of the lodge, the initiation of candidates and as well as the installation of officers with Harry W. Millspaugh, national director and chairman presiding over the ceremonies.

Thanks to Tom Kane, manager of the Sequoia Theatre. Visiting Moose and their families were given a matinee party, during the ceremonies.

Refreshments were served afterwards.

The Redwood City Moose lodge will be the only lodge between San Francisco and San Jose and take in members from Burlingame to Palo Alto, with permanent headquarters in Redwood City.

As usual in other live communities such membership will erect their own lodge building. Members look forward to such elaborate details, as an up-to-date gymnasium, lockers, hot room, steam room, showers, swimming tank using heated fresh water, a combination lodge-room and dance floor which would accomodate record crowds and finally a good library, and a friendly and restful club-room.

The first meeting of the new Moose lodge of Redwood City will be held on Wednesday, April 8, 8:00 p. m. sharp in the Odd Felows Hall, upstairs, temporary location until other arrangements can be made.

There is more than one kind of "wet and dry" question before the state legislature, it seems. Rolland A. Vandegrift, state director of finance, told the senate finance committee that there was "more bootlegging of gasoline than of other ah—ah-h—kinds of liquids."

Phone Connection Extended to Java

Should you go to the theater some night about eight o'clock and stop casually at a telephone to call up a friend in Bandoeng or Banjuwang, Java, you will be talking to the Javan the next day about lunch time.

That this is a possibility for Redwood City now has regular telephone service to the island of Java in the Dutch East Indies, for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's wires were hooked up with that island on April 1, according to Manager L. C. Brown.

Regular service to Java, which opened Wednesday, is set up over the Bell System's regular transatlantic telephone channel to London and the Dutch short wave channel from Amsterdam to Java. The difference in time between here and Java is fifteen hours and twenty minutes.

The San Francisco-Java circuit is 13,400 miles long. During certain hours of the day a German short wave channel through Berlin is used. This circuit is 13,900 miles long. The longest circuit ever used for regular telephone service was 17,000 miles, established a few months ago, from the Pacific Coast to Australia.

Any of the more than 20,000,000 North American telephones is able to talk with any one of the 30,000 Java telephones over the new service. Calls are accepted during all hours of the day.

CATTLE FOOD IN AIR

MADISON, Wis., (UP)—James C. Carver remodeled a large building here to manufacture cattle feed. Friends were invited to witness its first production. Garver pushed a button. Wheels turned. Workmen poured great sacks of grain into hoppers but nothing came out as the finished product. The building was searched from top to bottom without discovering where the grain and molasses was going. Garver went to the roof. There out of a ventilator spouted the mixture, and the wind scattered it afar. A workman had diverted the ground grain into the wrong pipe.

NEW MILL TOWN PLANNED

ATLANTA, (UP) — Georgia, Georgia, has been suggested for the name of the new mill town to be constructed here near the site of the $1,000,000 thread mill of the Clark Thread Company, Newark, N. J. Officials of the company suggested the name.

"And now do you want to know what the cow counties think about it?" Having opened several speeches with this question, Senator W. P. Rich, Marysville, is gaining a name as a rural spokesman of the upper house. Whenever he asks the question, the answer is invariably a hearty "yes."

TITLED HURDLER HOLDS MANY ATHLETIC MEDALS

LONDON, April 2 (UP)—Lord David Burghley, Britain's leading hurdle champion, probably holds more titles than any other athlete in the world.

He is the eldest son and heir of Lord Exter. He is a B. A., has been in the Grenadier Guards, and is a J. P. for Peterborough. He is a Cecil, a very fair English-looking young man who was 26 February 9. In 1929 he married Lady Mary Scott, the fourth daughter of the Duke and Dutchess of Buccleuch, at St. Clement Danes. Some day the former Cambridge crack hurdler will be the Marquess of Exter.
